PMF Application: Top 3 Common Mistakes

1) Transcript issues

Many applicants submit transcripts that are missing required elements such as name, school name, degree program and type, and most importantly, the date the degree was conferred or is expected to be completed. To make sure your transcript has everything it needs, go here: https://www.pmf.gov/become-a-pmf/application-process/application-tips/.

2) Insufficient documentation

Some applicants are missing alternative documents associated to a transcript when a required element is missing (e.g. degree date completion), documents related to Veterans’ Preference and/or Indian Preference, or documents related to a request for a reasonable accommodation for the on-line assessment. Review the “Application Process” and “Application Tips” sections on the PMF website at https://www.pmf.gov for additional information.

3) Waiting until the last minute

Many applicants do not start the application process until the night before or even hours before it closes. The entire application and on-line assessment can take 3-4 hour to complete. All of this takes time. Do yourself a favor and don’t wait until the last minute! For more information on preparing for the assessment, go here: https://www.pmf.gov/become-a-pmf/assessment-process/.

Every year, the PMF Program loses great applicants to the above mistakes—don’t let that be you! To learn more about becoming a PMF and the process to get there, visit us here: https://www.pmf.gov/become-a-pmf/overview.aspx.

You have to be in graduate school to apply to the PMF Program.

PMFs come from a very limited number of schools, mostly on the East Coast.

As a Finalist, if you don’t find an appointment within the first few months of your eligibility, you’re unlikely to find one at all.

FACT
PMFs are appointed across the country. Today, there are current PMFs serving in 26 States.

PMFs have backgrounds in a wide variety of academic disciplines, from toxicology, to forestry, to human rights, to cybersecurity (and everything in between). There were 56 unique academic disciplines represented for 2019 Finalists.

As long as you have obtained an advanced degree from an accredited institution no more than 2 years prior to the opening date of the application, or will complete the advanced degree requirements by August 31st of the following year, you are eligible to apply.

PMFs come from schools across the globe. There were 113 academic institutions represented for 2019 Finalists.

 Agencies hire PMFs year round, and some of the most prominent hiring periods are often in the latter half of the Finalists’ eligibility period.
